Eva,

Well, wasn't Civics just so much fun?
I thought so.
We had some good times at the dances this year. Good luck

Eva,

The dances were really fun! I hope you have a great time in college. Maybe Ruth and I will see you during the summer: You are a great friend.

Bye,

Kevin

Eva
Your dates have been interesting, the dances were fun, and this year has been great.
Have a great summer
and future.

Love,

As we see academics

An A on a test, a minor achievement, but to Foothill students it represented more. We saw academics as our chance to the future. A challenge set before us in our everyday lives. Our goal was to take this challenge as far as we could. To make a better life for ourselves. But in order to fulfill our goals required a lot of hard work. Many late nights were spent typing the English paper in order to make the grade. Friday and Saturday nights, when we would have normally been out having fun, were sacrificed in order to study for the big Anatomy test on Monday. Sacrifices were constantly being made. Going without lunch was often done in order to look up an article for a research paper. Time, and money, were all given in order to reach our goal. Academics even became more than just grades, but the OCAD represented Foothill in competitions. Our National Merit Scholars made others from other schools look up to Foothill and its academic ways. We saw all of this as getting us into the best of colleges, thus letting us become knowledgeable along with successful. As we see it, academics was our key to the future.

As we see Spirit

Spirit is usually thought of as cheerleaders at a football game yelling. But at Foothill there was a different image. We saw it as a little more than that. Yes cheerleaders did promote spirit, but they promoted what was already there. Spirit at Foothill was a big part of school life. We saw it as not only going to football games and yelling for the team, but we also saw it as dedication to a sport or club, or extra curricular activity. We saw it as practicing that one song or routine when one could be out having fun. We showed our spirit by dressing up on recognition days and encouraging others to do so also. We showed our spirit through all the things we did. We tried to create an atmosphere at Foothill that would long be enjoyed. Simply picking up that piece of trash off the ground and putting it in the trash can showed our spirit. In every way we let our spirit show. Then on Friday night all the spirit we had from the previous week would be poured out as the crowds of students would cheer and show their pride in school. As we see it, Spirit is not just cheering about something but it is caring about one's school, and having pride in it. Even when it was not the winning team we still had spirit.

As we see Friendship

A hug when one was depressed, an excited congratulations when one got an A on their Algebra 2E test, a supporting smile during a big oral report, or just sharing the latest gossip, was how we saw friendship. We saw it not only as someone to eat lunch with, but as an important part of our lives. A friend was someone who was always there. A person to talk to, cry with or laugh with. Only with them did we share our innermost secrets. And only with them were our good times created. Our friends came in many different sizes and shapes. Each was different, but each was important. Each had their own qualities, and flaws. We learned to appreciate their good points. And we learned to accept their bad points. We saw each one different. Each required a certain amount of time and effort. Some friendships were strong, and others quickly passed. Some we would hardly remember at our ten year reunion. Others we would stay close with for the rest of our lives. Our friends played an important role in our high school career. They helped us ask that certain someone to the dance. We studied with them for the big test, and cried with them when we got it back, and then together we would go out to a movie to forget it until report cards came out. When everything was going right in our lives they were there, and when our lives took a turn for the worse, they were there also. As we see it, Friendship was something one could count on, but never take advantage of.

As we see Sports

As the clock ran out and we were the winning team, that was how most saw sports. Winning We saw it as more than simply getting more points than the other team, but as an important building block in our lives.

Along with experiencing the thrill of victory, we also gained dedication, the ability to work together as a team, and the value of good sportsmanship. Our practices, helped us to develop dedication towards something. In our lives we would need this kind of dedication to complete the many tasks that will be placed before. As we united as a team, we gained the knowledge of how to work together towards a common goal. We learned that one person can't do everything by themselves, just as one person alone can't be victorious over an entire team. We knew that if each of us did our part, only then would we win. We saw each member of the team as an important and valuable member. We saw the importance of sportsmanship. We realized that in order to win one had to play fairly and by the rules not only in games but also in life. As we see it, sports taught the many values needed to succeed, and gave us a chance to be winners.

As we see Activities

Activities. What did they mean? What was their purpose? As we see it, they were the fun part of high school. They kept us out of a rut. They were excitement and anticipation. All Foothill students looked forward to the day they, like the seniors could dress up in togas and have a slave for the day. Excitement grew as the homecoming dance approached and people paired off into couples. The hope that the right person, or at least a person would ask one to the dance, gave a solid reason to attend school if not to learn, then at least to give someone the chance to get asked to the dance. Activities also gave way to fear. The fear to ask the person to the dance. The fear of rejection was also apparent.

We also saw activities at the highlights of our four long years in high school. The day we dressed up in the most outrageous costume we could possibly think of for the recognition day of our particular class stuck in our memories as the way high school was. Activities consisted not only of dances and dress-up days, but also of class competitions, and general fun! As we see it, activities were the fun, spunk, and best of high school. They brought us through the drab and dreary everyday routine of school, and added new meaning to it, excitement!

As we see Academics

How do we see our Academia? Do we see it as the best thing in one's life? Academics are only as hard or boring as we see it

Academics is what one thinks about when one thinks of high school. But what type of Academics frightened most students? To some the thought that they would have to take two years or more of science was very frightening. The worry of finding two easy science classes was bothersome enough, not to mention taking the class itself. Or how about finding two math classes that would meet college entrance requirements. Would Algebra I meet all the requirements or did you have to take Geometry. But what struck fear into the heart of every Foothill High student was four years of English. Yes all Foothill students must take four years of English and pass them all. What did you do to pass all those classes? First you had to consult your best and closest friends as to which teacher was the easiest in each English class. Then you had to find a way to get into this class when there were five hundred students with the same idea that you had. Once you got in, you found out that your best friend was not going to be taking this class because that teacher was the hardest teacher in this school to date. Now will you be able to get out of this class? Transfer was out of the question, because either your schedule couldn't take the move, or the other teacher's class was already closed. What a life to lead, trying to survive Academics.

Academics is something that most students fear in the beginning, but everyone seems to survive it

Stress Out!

PSAT'S, Colleges, SAT'S, Achievement Tests These were the things that Juniors had to think about, but wished they didn't.

The Junior year was the time to start making the important decisions about the fast approaching future. Sandwiched between thoughts of who to take to Sadie Hawkins, and how to ask that special someone to the Prom, the Juniors also had to face these weighty issues. Spending a perfect beach weather Saturday taking the SAT, was no ones idea of a good time, but to those Juniors hoping to attend College it was a mandatory sacrifice. The last two years of high school move quickly, and the future all too soon become the present. With these hurdles behind them, Foothill Juniors can have a relaxing summer.

Paula Valle, as Junior class President, made a great effort to get every junior involved in junior year activities. According to Valle, the junior class was "wild, but kept itself under control." She hoped that as seniors the junior class would realize that getting involved was extremely important and could add a lot to the class spirit. Valle worked exceptionally hard all year on various projects: "Cowboy and Indian Day" for the juniors' dress-up theme during Homecoming week, class competitions, and the junior-senior prom, which was a great success.

Making History

To create patriotic citizens, the school decided to subject juniors to the task of studying U.S. History. An endless array of outlines, guidebooks, oral and written exams, essays, current events, and films were included in this package deal. History teachers guaranteed either a pass or fail at the end of the year, although excitement and interest were not included.

It's Not The Same Old Story

After English I and English II, Juniors were faced with an awesome responsibility . . . actually choosing their English class. Choosing? Well, sort of, if one did not count all the classes that were closed after the seniors registered first. A popular, but full class, was Fiction of the Future. Others included Modern American Novel, English and American Literature, and College Composition. Writing courses and literature courses, stories of the past, present, and future, English and American works, all added to the diversity of Junior English selections. Students had to choose whether to be faced with fears of nuclear war, the fall of the tragic hero, or the hopes of the American Dream

Special Activities

Juniors had many fun things to look forward to as the school year approached. Two special events that were eagerly anticipated were the Junior/Senior prom and the arrival of the class rings.

Prom was an exceptional dance dedicated to the upperclassmen. It was the greatest dance and the social highlight of the year as a record number of Juniors and Seniors attended. The dance was especially significant to Seniors as it was the last dance of their high school years, and for the juniors it symbolized a stepping stone into a new realm as upperclassmen.

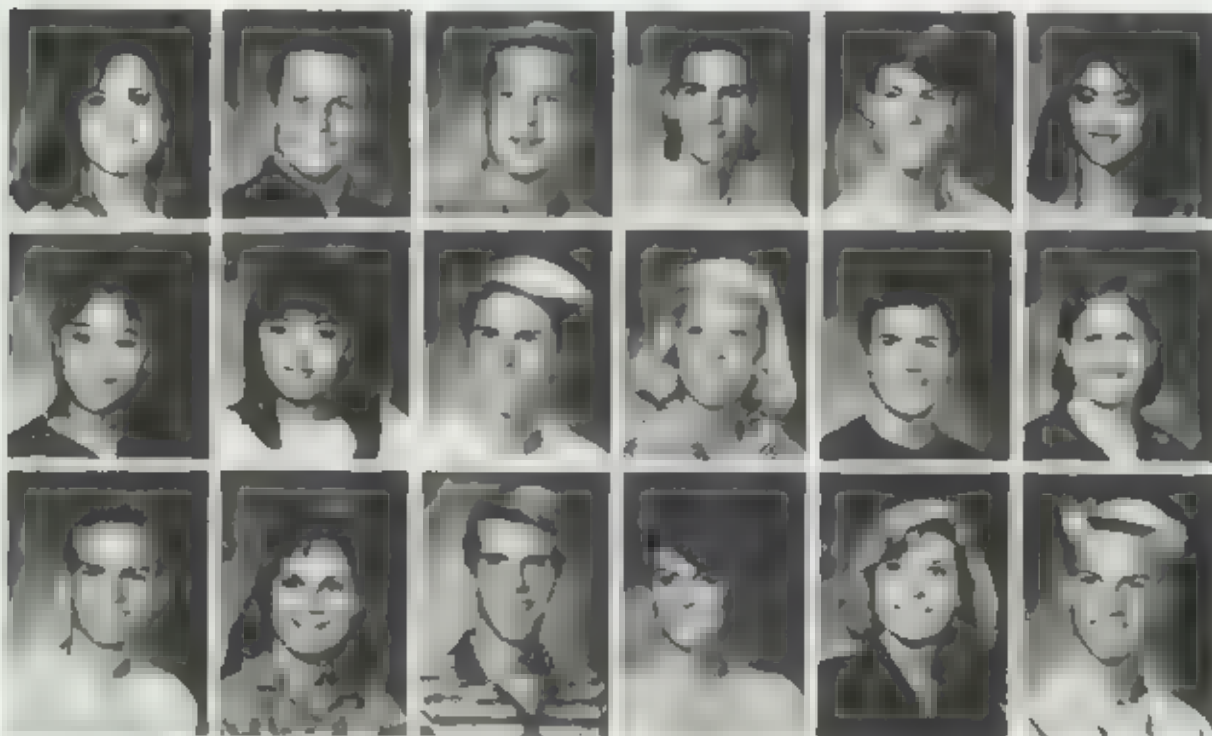

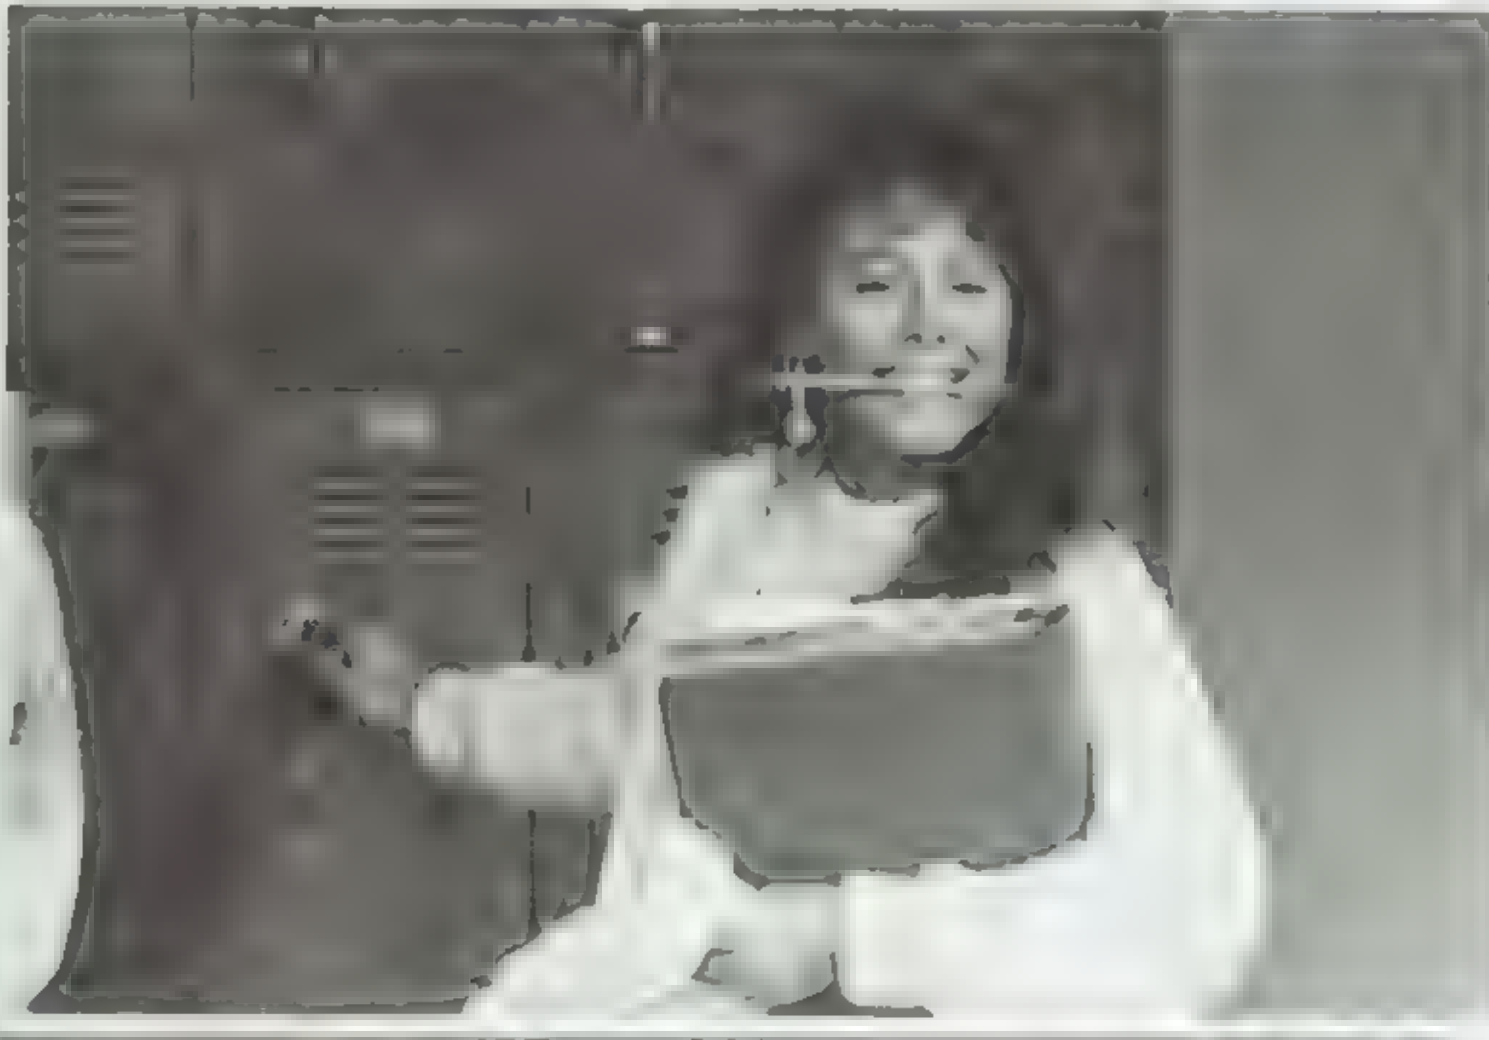

Receiving the class rings was always an exciting and long-awaited event. Ordered during the Sophomore year, the rings arrived in the middle of the Junior year, just in time to be worn proudly by Soon-to-be Seniors.

During their junior year many Foothill students had the pleasure of taking one of the favorite classes on campus. Yes folks we are talking about Chemistry!! Those who were enrolled in Chemistry AP with Mr. Pfitzner (alias J.P.) were lucky enough to experience titrations, organic chemistry, and everyone's favorite-molecular geometry. A highlight of the class was the day of the stoichiometry test, when many earned the privilege of using the vogue term "Stoichy" when speaking of this fun topic. Scott Crosby described the chemistry experience as being "totally cool" and, along with classmate John Collins, expressed interest in taking Science Seminar Chemistry during his Senior year, because the experiments in chemistry were "So much fun."

Sophomores Live it Up.

The wheels, the sweet birthdays, well, hey, what more could one ask of life? They knew the ropes-everybody went through the freshman crisis and survived! Revising the accounts of the year Sophomores realized how they had kept their COOL First, by picking on the freshmen.(general rule), not worrying too much about grades (leave it to the juniors, since they do it best), and the most important fact of all to keep company with the SENIOR COOL

The young fools definitely took life easy becoming the prime example that loving life, never killed anyone! Sophomores were like talking heads, telling true stories, about the WILD,WILD LIFE

Making the Ascent Up

Sophomore year was a little further up the hill of life. Sophomores were regarded with a little more tolerance by the reigning upperclassmen. As the cars came along, so did the better social activities. Mom or dad were no longer waiting in their station wagons for Dick and Jane. Sixties became the magic year for many teens to date. It was no longer the group date, but the actual date on one experience. Going to the movies was no longer the popcorn in hand, but the hand in hand. Sophomores were slowly making the ascent up and it definitely had its benefits.

The Excitement Grows

Everybody was healthy and safe this year. All the sophomores had to take Health and Safety as a graduation requirement. They all got to learn about the body and how it functions-from head to toe. The eager students got to learn much about hair follicles and epidermis, but the excitement got really going when they got to the respiratory system. Some teachers required a report on a subject dealing with health. Some finished theirs the night before, by staying up all night with 8 cups of coffee.

There were a couple of guest speakers which they tried to embarrass throughout with "can you do it?" questions.

Seeing how some students were filled with emotion about "The body and how it Works," the teachers decided to break to them the news about CPR. Yes, everybody found out it was not profanity but Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation-a method easily learned and perfected with a plastic dummy.

The Task of Driving

Sophomores had a fun year! There was no reason not to have it. The Freshmen blues were over—that nagging queasiness of walking into a wrong class (filled with seniors, of course) or the humiliation of being “canned” were finally REALLY over.

Among the nicest things that happened was the fact that most everyone was eligible to obtain a drivers licence. One had to pass Drivers Ed with Mr. V, but other than that getting the pink slip was “cake.” The only thing left after was to give Mr. Roberts, the behind the wheel instructor a couple of good scares and heartattacks before really going to “Santa Ana’s own” DMV. There they had to take a test where they couldn’t miss more than seven questions. After passing the infamous test, everybody got a treat! They got to ride with a complete stranger—that pronounced right and left the same way—the stranger was not some romantic and alluring kind of stranger, but the DMV tester. The adventure was not yet over. Once the tester gave everybody a 100%, they all proceeded to line up and have their picture taken (which, of course turned many modeling scouts eyebrows, for its artistic value.)

Biology is Life.

As a sophomore student sat in his third period Spanish class he thought about his fourth period Biology class, which had him in total awe. As he sat staring at the clock hopelessly waiting for the bell to ring, he wondered what grade he would receive on the day's inquiry. He also day dreamed about the day's lab experiment.

Biology was a class that studied life. Working in the lab gave the Sophomore students a sense of responsibility. They got a chance to work with microscopes, sterile solutions and test tubes, which made them feel important. Learning about chromosomes and mitosis gave a person a whole new outlook on the rest of the day.

One Step Beyond.

Each freshman had their worries about high school? What would it be like? Would it be nice? Will I like it? Junior high school was just the first step into a freshmen's future, but high school was the biggest change that a freshman goes through. If someone wants to go to college, they'll have to go through high school to get there. It was also a way to make new friends, and change one's life. It was fun and exciting. Freshmen really should not have worried about high school, especially since they were going to the best school around!

Freshman Physical Education.

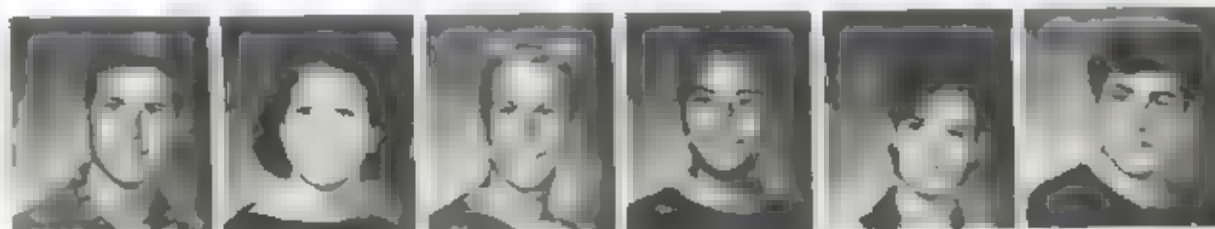

It was the first year in high school and one of the classes that everyone had to take was the dreaded P E. The sports played through the year were chosen by the special coaching staff at F H S to help keep those young bodies in shape and to perhaps create some interest in certain sports. Along with playing soccer, volleyball, and/or softball, there was the dreaded Presidential Physical Fitness Tests. These test had the freshman doing anything from doing a flexibility test to running a timed mile. But before they knew it, the year was over and so was P E.

Freshman Fears

For some of the freshmen, the fears of being stuffed into a locker, deposited into a trash can or tied to a tree was reality; but to most this was just a myth. The real fear came from the new kind of homework. Some might have become frustrated after just a month of school while others found it as a challenge. Well, all that can be said for the frustrated ones is to hang in there 'cause you have just three years to go, and then it will be all over. Watch out for senior jocks, or the myths heard might become reality!

Right: Drama was just one of the many elective classes to take at FHS. Here, Arrin Kent and John Newcomb act out a scene in a play.

The Hang-Outs.

Some people might not understand what the word "hang-out" means but it refers to the places where high schoolers can go with their friends to eat, talk, and have fun. Back in the earlier generations, when most kids parents went to high school, they went to places like Angelo's where they would meet friends and show off their cars. (Angelo's was somewhat like Arnolds in the television series "Happy Days".) This happened after the "stone age" as some would say. In the 80's it was no longer burgers, fries and a coke but pizza, seltzer water and frozen yogurt. The hang-out may change through the years, but will still be the place where kids meet.

Lunch Break.

Hanging around the school during lunch was the only thing to do while waiting for 5th period. Some looked forward to lunch as a chance to take a break from the academic strain on the brain. During this time, while the seniors were away, and (also some of those juniors and sophomores who managed to sneak out to lunch) the freshmen were left at school to fend for themselves and find something to do. The choices one had were either standing around talking with friends, studying for classes or even take off 5 minutes to scarf down lunch. The year was all in all a great year that included meeting great new friends, getting good grades, and eating good food from the cafeteria . . . well, two out of three wasn't bad

Brock Wagner.

Brock Wagner, a graduate from the neighboring school Orange High School, was transferred from Tusting High School to serve as the new assistant Principle in place of Bob Lincourt, the previous Assistant Principle of Foothill. He served as the assistant Principle at Tusting High School for five years but the district decided there was a need for him at Foothill.

The Assistant Principles job consisted of running the office computer system, and he was in charge of the support services. Also he was responsible for the activities that were held at foothill during the year. Even though Tusting High School and Foothill High School are rival Schools in athletics, academics and other Aspects, Wagner says, "they both have equal amounts of spirit towards their schools."

Extended Reading.

This year Foothill students under the new extended reading program were required to read four novels each eighteen weeks. This program was approved by the English curriculum committee before the beginning of the new term. Each novel on this program was based on the members of the committee. They were tested every four to five weeks based on the novel they read. The program enabled students to widen their vocabulary, develop writing styles, give them the ability to communicate and a broader experience in literature.

As we see Activities

Dances, senior munches, recognition days, along with others make up what we call activities. But what did they have? As we see it, Activities were the soul of our high school lives. They are the things that kept us going. Soon we would forget an exam, or a paper we had to turn in, but never would we forget the day we came to school wearing sheets instead of clothes, and lounged around in chariots, while others stuffed our faces with grapes. That big Geometry assignment would soon be forgotten, but an elegant evening on the town wearing tuxedos and formals, while a limousine drove us to a fine dinner house, then on to the Prom, would not be so easily forgotten. Activities got us through the hard times. Just thinking about the upcoming Papa Do Run Run dance would give us the extra push to get an A on our oral report.

We also saw activities as a way to express ourselves. Each imaginative costume we created especially for the recognition day or the Halloween munch showed a side of us even we might not have known about. We used these events as an excuse to bring out our true selves.

We also saw activities as friendship builders. The time spent putting together the perfect costume, or deciding where we planned to dine for winter formal created a bond between us that could never be broken.

As we see it, activities were the heart and soul of high school. The time we spent towards them, the hopes we made for them, and the bonds that were created through them are the memories of high school we will cherish for the rest of our lives.

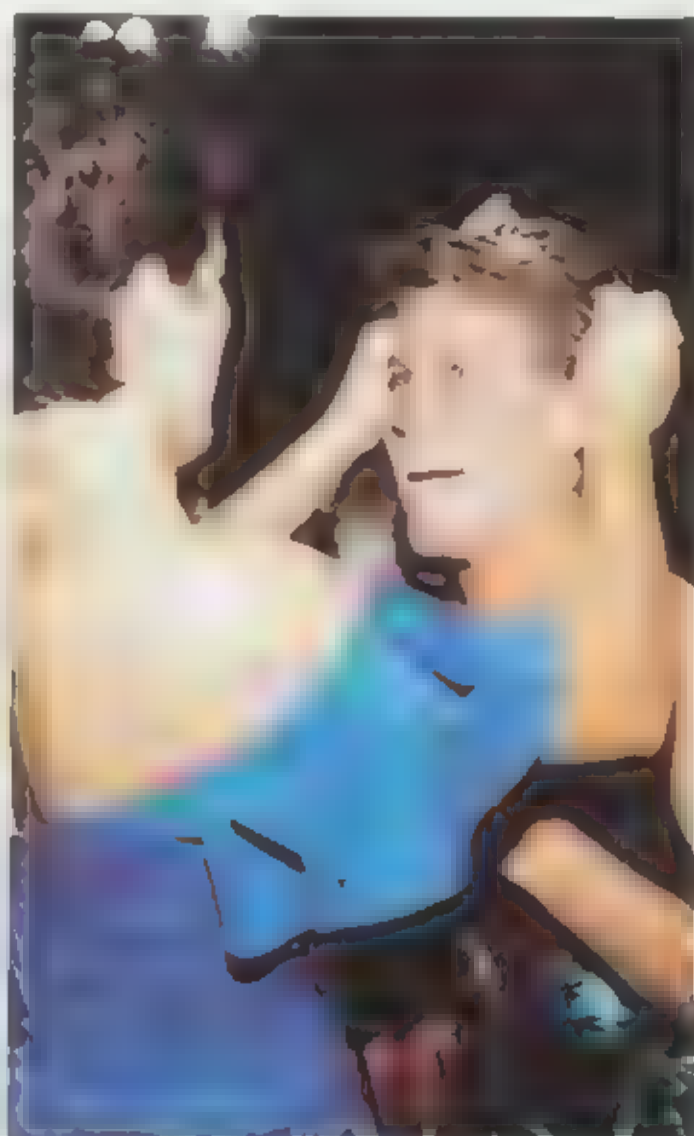

The Homecoming Game was filled with excitement and anticipation. Fall was about to turn into winter, but not until Foothill had its new Homecoming Queen. The court consisted of Mindy Allen, Bev Elliot, Tiffany Chandler, Shannon Hill, and Kristi Wood, each girl wondering who would be the one. Each princess was chauffeured in a convertible Mercedes past cheering friends and relatives. Given the red carpet treatment onto the field, the girls stood with their supportive fathers, and the tension mounted. Foothill's 1986 Homecoming Queen was none other than Tiffany Chandler. The fireworks flew to add sparkle to the night and Queen Tiffany's name was in bright lights. The night after, at the Homecoming Dance, the Knights of Foothill: Mark Dunn, Paul Fisher, Scott Galey, Mike Gazzaniga, and Randy Laycock were given their share in the limelight. This time, royalty was handed to Scott Galey. The King and the Queen shared a dance together and everlasting memories had been embroiled.

A Truly Endless Knight

"Mom, what time do I have to be home?"

"Well, since tonight is Homecoming . . . I want you home at 2 00 a.m."

"Thanks, Mom."

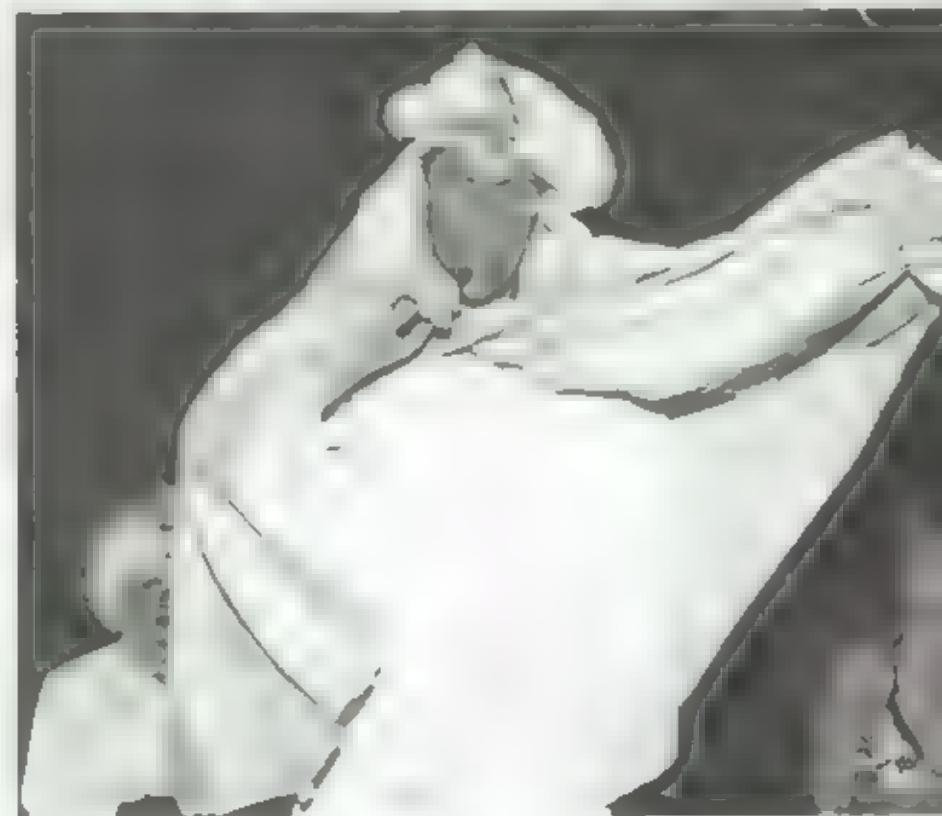

Sound like a familiar conversation? For some people the "Thanks," was sincere, but for others it was just something expected of them. Although this was so in previous years, the dance contained a different element. Early on October 26, (the morning after the dance), the clocks were moved back one hour. This gave the knights a truly "Endless Knight," the theme of the 1986 Homecoming Dance

Magic seemed to be in the air. Not only was the night curiously longer, but the Top 40 music, which was played by Rembrandt, wonderously filled the air. Many couples and groups got their pictures taken, and they also danced the night away. The Student Senate did a terrific job planning the yearly event at the Disneyland Hotel

On October 30, 1986 the seniors at Foothill busily put on costumes and raced through fog and traffic to the Knott's Berry Farm Senior Munch. Due to fog and traffic the munch was delayed. The seniors were then faced with a difficult decision, whether to take the senior munch picture or to get the full time of entertainment. The seniors wanted to do both and miss fourth period, but the administrators did not want them to miss it. Breakfast was then served. After eating an appetizing feast consisting of scrambled eggs, hashed potatoes, biscuits, sausages, and drinks, they held a contest for the most outrageous costume, and were entertained by Tony Angelo, a hypnotist. The munch was a complete success. In the end, the senior munch picture was taken. Knott's administrators stated: "This is the best high school group we have ever had at Knott's."

Hurrah For Hollywood

The theme of 'Hollywood' for the Senior Class's recognition day on October 20, 1986, seemed very similar to the L.A. theme used the previous year by the seniors. This year's senior class president, Tiffany Chandler, felt that 'Hollywood' was a good theme to use due to the variety of submissions for a theme idea. The class of 1987, as in previous years, showed tremendous school spirit. More than half of the class came to school dressed as movie stars, movie characters, directors, prostitutes, bag ladies, and various other creations seen wandering the streets of everyday Hollywood. Many seniors expressed their liking for the theme by saying that they enjoyed the broadness and the tremendous variety of costumes they could create for this theme. They felt that the day "started Homecoming Week with much school spirit, and many seniors wanted to dress up." However, most seniors felt that quad decorations could have been better and made to look more exciting. All in all, though, the seniors had a wonderful day and will surely remember their last dress-up day at Foothill for years to come

Burning skies nestled in the hollow hills of Foothill provided the perfect setting for Junior Recognition Day. Their turn out was enormous, the best in years. Cowboys and Indians marked the theme for the creative Juniors. Walking onto the campus one spotted native, teepees scattered along the congested Quad. Freshly painted cardboard saloons lined the cold, concrete stage. Going across the campus one found cowboys playfully playing the part of un-sung heroes. Donning ten gallon hats, Levis, boots and Western style shirts they were ready for anything. The Indians wore suede outfits, headbands and carried tomahawks. Their makeup colorized the gray day. Everyone joked around with their costumed friends. Even though the day did not last forever, they made the most of it. When the sun set under the hollow hills, the cowboys and their friends the Indians hopped on their horses and rode off into the quiet serenity of Orange County. Ride em up', ride em out', Rawhide

On October 22, the Foothill quad was converted into a wild jungle with tribal women and safari explorers. All that was expected now was an African tiger to walk through the quad or to hear an elephant blow its trumpet in the distance

Surf's Up, But The Surfers Aren't

It was a cool fall day, 1986, but the freshman class wanted to bring back the summers of the 1960s. "Surfing 60's" lived for a day at Foothill High. Unfortunately, the moon doggies and Gidgets were still at the beach or something. Freshmen usually show the most spirit for high school activities because of their overflowing excitement about the new environment. But unless Maui and Sons lived twenty years ago, the surfers were hard to be found. Towels were wrapped around girls' waists and peace signs were painted on their faces. But what about the guys? They probably couldn't part company with their surfboards. Surf City was on the map for a day, but cardboard beaches and one dimensional waves didn't seem to appeal to a generation of California dudes and dudettes who want the real thing.

Fashion Statements

Fads and fashions come and go, and it's a true task to keep up with them. Guys and girls each have their own sense of style and this is seen all over the campus of Foothill. Fall and winter offered prime weather for some hot dressers. Long coats, scarfs, and sweaters were the most popular items to mix and match.

Patterns were bold or subtle among both genders. Guys were becoming more fashion conscious. They were starting to button up their shirts, tighten their belts, and look for shoes in any other color besides Nike white. Pants were narrower at the ankles, and most girls chose to adorn their legs in boots, high and low, fringed or buckled, red, white, or black. Silver was the metal to be seen in, from bracelets and earrings to belts and shoes. The look was Vogue, GQ, mod, ska, punk, conservative, surfer, rocker, or something in between. No one fashion statement was predominant, but put together, they created a definite exclamation of self-expression and imagination.

A New Twist To Togas

On October 24, 1986, the Foothill High campus witnessed a transformation. Instead of trendy Levi's, stirrups, and oversized shirts and sweaters, the class of 1987 donned Greek-style togas and drove their chariots to school. This facsimile of a frat toga party had become tradition in past years and had been celebrated by "servants" serving their "masters."

A common sight on that day was a servant hand-feeding grapes to his master, along with other fruits, fast food, and donuts. In 1987 a rare sight was to be seen. With the encouragement of receiving extra money (points) in economics, boys found themselves servants to female masters. And thus, a new twist to the toga came to FHS.

F.A.K.H.F.A.J.; To Be Or Not To Be?

Foothill's Annual Knights Homecoming Feast and Joust; to be or not to be? This was definitely the question. Turnout was low and internal problems arose. Over one-hundred early dismissals were issued that Friday and many just left campus in pursuit of other fine fast foods, supporting a multi-million dollar industry instead of beneficial inter-scholastic clubs.

The idea of bringing huge coolers tempted some seniors to fill them with refreshments other than Cokes. Now, the above problems may have ruined a coveted senior tradition.

It may have been done out of a final defiance or rebellion or just for the sake of "fun," but eventually consequences will follow. Faculty members felt that abolishing Feast and Joust or making it non-mandatory, would make some of the problems disappear. Tradition is important to Foothill, but if it cannot be upheld, it may see itself in for some changes.

Just Another Week

So the students thought it was going to be yet another dreaded school week. But wait, this isn't another mind boggling trauma filled week, it was the breathtaking Homecoming Week. Yes once again, the Foothill students take part in bizarre rituals to just have fun. The students made the most of their offered activities, since there was more to choose from last year. Whatever happened to Donkey Basketball and the star studded Air Guitar Assembly? Although these events were not included, it did have events that will last in cluttered minds forever, like the ever so popular "belching" contest, the messy egg drop into the cup, limbo contest, and the pie eating contest. All of the events were successful with the students. They found themselves getting into the school spirit when they participated. Nighttime provided Recreation Night and the chaotic Movie Night. Even though Movie Night ended in a disaster, the week rounded out with Feast and Joust. This is what Homecoming Week is all about where one indulges in the finest at Foothill.

Stars For Just One Night

The starlit night set the stage for a special group of six girls and six guys. For them, this was a night of reward and recognition. Sue Davis, Laura Stevens, Inja McGehee, Nikki Pliner, Valerie Fryer, and Karen Kin had rightfully earned their places as princesses, but they knew only one among them would become queen. The princes, Anish Bhimani, Rob Blaney, Todd Miner, Bart McHenry, Bryce Robinson, and Paul Cleary were of course much more laid back. Finally the princesses were escorted by their princes for all to see. Royally yours were Queen Inja McGehee and King Todd Miner. Knights Shine at Winter Formal

As December approached, all the students at Foothill were impatiently looking forward to winter vacation. After three months of long, laborous schooldays, everyone was anticipating two weeks of well-deserved rest. However, December also brought another element of excitement to the student body. It was time once again for those girls to get up enough nerves to ask that special guy to the Winter Formal at the Anaheim Convention Center. Once they had a date, girls forgot all about Christmas shopping, but instead went roaming the malls and boutiques for a festive-looking formal gown. After dinner, many couples were chauffeured to the dance in a private limousine to make the evening all the more spectacular. At the event, the couples danced to the music of the Lost 45's, and had their pictures taken to hold on to this special moment in their lives. Towards the conclusion of the dance, Inja McGee and Todd Miner were chosen queen and king, respectively. Aside from Prom, Winter Formal provided the students with memories they will cherish for a long, long time.

Fish of Faith

Jeff Brown (lead singer), Mike Reafsnyder (guitar), Tom Olsen (drums), and Jim Nestor (bass) are Fish of Faith. And they're definitely not another mundane band of the 80's. The band got started in September of 1986 when Jim struck up a conversation with Mike about his Smiths t-shirt. Jim found out Mike played the guitar and Mike found out that Jim played bass and the rest is history. The basic purpose of the band was for self-expression, but Tom wants to see if the existential plane really exists. Fish of Faith's music is beyond words. Jim says, "It's too intense to describe." Jeff wants a definition of music itself. Jim feels he can relate to the Smiths, Echo, Chameleons, Dead Milkmen, James, and the Buzzcocks. Jeff relates to Jim Morrison (Doors) and David Byrne. Mike simply relates to the Smiths. Tom feels he can relate to Pete Shelley and Budgie. Presently, the band has been jamming and playing gigs. They hope for a record, a world domination tour, and a conquering of artistic expression. Jeff finds inspiration with modern art and depression. Mike is inspired by Jeff Brown. Tom is inspired by Jeff Brown's depression. And Jim is inspired by Mike's cat. Tom feels music should have stopped in 1980 with a few exceptions. Jeff thinks music today has no feeling or human emotion. Jim thinks dark imports are cool, but domestics lag. Mike agrees with the feelings of the three. The band's name, Fish of Faith, comes from the little metal fish on the back of cars, usually indicating bad drivers at the wheel. Fish of Faith feels they're worthwhile because of the personalities within the band and the fact that they're not stagnant, but progressive

As We Hear Them

The band is Az-lz and the music is rock and roll with heart and soul. A. J. Palluck (drums), Damian Zavala (guitar), Tony Cangelosi (bass), and Trigger Gallas (lead singer) are Az-lz. These four guys evolved in 1984 to have fun and to play at parties. Their music is rock and roll. Each band member has a respectable group of inspirations. A. J. relates himself to Phil Collins, Neil Peart (Rush), and Stewart Copland. Stevie Ray Vaughn and Keith Richards are Damians inspirations. Trigger Gallas emulates Bruce Springsteen. Tony is inspired by Chris Stinson. Az-lz's future lies in local bars and pubs. Long-Term hopes lie in the making of an album. Presently the members get together for jam sessions and parties. Az-lz feels music today is superficial and played not for music but for money. "Az-lz" generated from the fact that the guys come "as is." They may come Az-lz" but they play well together.

Brewsters

Tony Cangelosi and Robert Gallas are The Brewsters. They're two down to earth musicians condemning financial exploitation and the overflow of technology, but promoting fun and enjoyment of clean music. The Fun Zone is their center stage and the passer-buyers are their ever-changing audience. The Brewsters' music is interestingly new walk rhythm and blues. The two like to play music with good acoustic feeling and their inspirations for lyrics come from people walking by or just whatever comes to mind. Tony and Robert would like to move from the peninsula of Balboa to the sidewalks of Venice. They relate their music to Bruce Springsteen, The Smithereens, and Buddy Holly. Robert definitely feels that there is some good music today, but there is too much commercialization. Tony says, "If you can't feel the music, it's not worth playing." Tony and Robert are in Brewsters just to have fun and not money. They play music that sounds good and that doesn't have to live up to the standards of society.

School Spirit in Progress

The 1986 Pep Squad did a fabulous job preparing the pep assemblies. Besides seeing the "practiced to perfection" routines, the audience saw many other entertaining events. The cheerleaders promoted school spirit, acknowledged all the sports teams and their achievements, and put on a good, professional show. They also congratulated the junior/senior OCAD team.

At the first assembly the school welcomed the freshman class by inviting one down onto the gym floor. They proceeded to tie the "fredle" up and forced him to remain in this state throughout the assembly. For being a sport, he was rewarded with a pie in his face. Many similar events could be seen at the rest of the assemblies. Thanks to the outstanding Pep Squad the whole school was able to see school spirit in progress.

Foothill High School, just like every other high school, does things as they see fit. There has never been one particular mode of life. What we do, what we wear, and where we go tell people who we are. During our teen years, many of us acquire cars. Some students have gotten a taste of the rich life,, in the flavors of BMWs, Porsches, GTIs, or Mercedes. Each car tells a story about its owner. How one feels on the inside is expressed in his or her style of dress. We are seen as funky, radical, conservative, content, creative, or compromising. Our friends are people who can relate to us and we can relate to them. Together we can take on the world, or take what comes our way. Either way, it is our view of life which creates our vision of the world. Like all growing boys and girls, food is essential, especially good food. The Ritz and Chez Cary may be out of budget, but Lamp post and Goldmine get the job of socializing and munching done all in one. The weekdays are for hitting the books, either with the outside of your head or better yet the grey stuff inside. Weekends are for cutting loose and leaving the hallowed halls behind. Football games actually bring school and fun together along with an energetic group of people. Parties, dancing, movies, eating, concerts, and just cruising around are seen as ways of the weekend.

Foothill is a kaleidoscope of people, personalities, and ideas. Some will see the sun, others will see the moon. Together we will make the day and take it on together.

Not A 'Square' Dance

The tombstones were scattered. The wanted signs were posted. But the saloon and the general store were closed because on March 14, the dancehall was bustling. It was Sadie Hawkins night. The Poorman from KROQ, along with his date April presided over the wild crowd. This year, the ASB made a radical change in the Sadie Hawkins format by having it at school and having a DJ minus the square dance music. April, for a good cause, offered a kiss to one lucky guy. Eric Merker turned out to be the victor, giving April a kiss that made her want to dump the Poorman. Saline Lemke, on the other hand, won a lunch date with the unwanted Poorman.

RAIN Returns

RAIN returned to the Foothill High Gym this year after a one year absence. The absence seemed to help increase the eagerness of the students to go to this dance; and to say the least enthusiasm was very high. Once the dance started the enthusiasm only increased in magnitude

This year as in past years the crowd that gathered came appropriately dressed for the occasion by wearing clothing from the late sixties, with Flower Power used as an unofficial theme for this dance. And dance the crowd did; the dance seemed to last forever with no one wishing for it to stop, but it was inevitable the RAIN would have to end

As We See Clubs

When one thought of clubs, they might think that they were something people joined simply to get their picture in the yearbook and to look good on their college application. But to many they were more than that. Clubs were a way to get involved with school. They promoted special interests in people. For example, for those who were interested in helping others of their peer group, there was a peer aid club for them to join. Those people who had a special interest in computers they had the opportunity to join the computer club and assist in the computer dating program at Foothill.

Clubs did not only consist of those clubs that one would sign up for on the club day. There were also clubs that were classes and open to only a few who had specific talents. To become a cheerleader or a tall flag member, one had to try out and be chosen for the squad. A band member needed to know how to play an instrument, and a journalism student had to be able to write suitable copy.

As we at Foothill saw it clubs represented our hopes and talents that we were unable to express through our regular classes. How many people could display their incredible singing voice in Trigonometry class? And what might the Chemistry instructor say when some started to twirl a baton during a test?

As we see it, Clubs provide for the students an opportunity to take their talents and interests, one step beyond the normal academic curriculum.

Spirits Soar

As glamorous as it may seem, cheerleading was a lot of hard work. The glorified cheerleaders spent a lot of money and countless hours working to keep the spirits high and Foothill #1. Beginning in the summer with cheerleading camp, the cheerleaders started to build the camaraderie necessary to cheer Foothill on to victory. Foothill cheerleaders spent many long hours preparing for pep assemblies and sporting events. They provided school spirit, and learned new cheers to perform at the various sporting events and pep assemblies. The cheerleaders worked hard to boost the morale of the Foothill athletes. They decorated the athletes' lockers and doorsteps, in addition to making decorative posters and baking cookies for them. There's more to cheerleading than RAH, RAH, RAH.

"Cheerleading is fun, but a lot more work than people are led to believe."

Representation

What is a nation without government? And what if the nation were governed unfairly? And what if a school were governed solely by teachers and administrators, without any student representation? Without any student representation the school would be governed unfairly. Luckily, however, there is such a thing called ASB — Associated Student Body. The ASB consists of several subdivisions. These are: the Student Senate, which sends representatives to the classrooms to present newsworthy items and get opinions from students on different issues and activities. The four class councils are responsible for organizing activities allocated to their respective classes, and the Girls Athletic Board is in charge of Winter Formal and sports events. As a whole, the ASB tries to provide the entire student body with fun filled activities, including Homecoming Week, dances, Springfest, and various other events, to insure that the four years spent in high school will be cherished by the students for a long time after they have moved on in life

“This year’s ASB is the most capable and intelligent we’ve had; our communications commission is great.”

New Life Club

Most people saw the New Life Club as a club that has no purpose. Others saw it as a club in which guidelines or examples of ways to cope with life, without having to be left with struggles of ordinary high school life. Of course there is the third party who did not know what to think.

This year the NLC had grown due to opposition to "The NLC's purpose was, is, and shall be to have fellowship with student Christians and to learn more about Christ."

having it on campus. For those who don't remember, the NLC was threatened by an outside opposition stating that it was unconstitutional. "True or not, the NLC had grown in number, and the already existing members in the club had grown stronger in their relationship in Christ," said the club's president.

"The NLC's purpose was, is, and shall be to have fellowship with student Christians and learn more about the word of God." Another important purpose was to give a person with troubles a place to turn to share, discuss and to work out problems within the club. They were willing to try to solve them or give advice to where one could find the solution. The help was not just for those in the club, but for all seeking advice.

Drama Dazzles

Drama entertained the public, making one forget the vicious cycle of reality for a brief moment. This year's production of "You Can't Take It With You," did just that. It made one forget the worries of life and let them enjoy a play with remarkable talent. This comedy portrayed Alice's love for Tony Kirby and the night of their engagement announcement. Luckily, the Sycamores

"The outrageousness, and insanity seen on stage was nothing compared to what went on off stage."

made the most of this hilarious evening. The cast included Brad Smith and Megan O'Toole as the stars. This year's production proved a success. The new director Glenda Waterman and the cast provided a sell out performance and an incredible encore. AFS at FHS

Traveling was just one of the dreams a graduating high school student had. For some, their dreams could come true through American Field Service. During the 1986-87 school year there were more than 3000 foreign students, from 62 countries, attending various high schools across America. Four of those students were here at Foothill High School. The requirements for this adventure were based on interest, more than academics. A student must have had at least a “B” average, but if they didn’t, their interest in the subject helped a lot. A.F.S. gave students a chance to not only travel, but to experience the day by day living of the American culture

“The requirements for this adventure were based on interest, more than academics.”

Tall Flags Climb The Walls

"WE WANT THE STICK" chanted the 7 members of the 1986-87 tall flag team who attended camp. And they got it. The tall flag squad started their outstanding season by attending USA camp in August. Along with winning the spirit stick, they also received a superior trophy, and a second plaque for the routine they performed for the entire camp. Camp was not only winning awards, they also learned routines, ate peanut butter and salsa sandwiches and literally climbed the walls.

"The dedication and hard work of all the team members is what made the year go so well."

After the return from camp, the actual season began. Led by Captain Melanie Fink, and Co-Captain, Laurie Rauch, the tall flag team worked numerous hours perfecting halftime, pre-game, and parade routines. All the hard work paid off in the end when the team received a 1st place trophy at the Tustin Tillers Day parade, another 1st place Trophy at the Lester Oaks Band Review, and a 4th place trophy at the California Band Review, over all the other teams.

The season did not end there. The team went on to perform at a basketball half-time show. Many long hours were spent perfecting the Top Gun routine.

Along with the regular season, two of the girls, Melanie Fink, and Laura Brugman were accepted into the Rose Parade Honor Parade, where they received the opportunity to march in the Rose Parade on new years day. Overall the Tall Flag Team had a terrific year that all the members will never forget.

Fun Fun Fun!!

Being a Foothill majorette wasn't easy, but for five girls, it was possible. To make the team, they had to be able to twirl, dance, smile . . . and act a little crazy. While twirling and dancing were necessary to perform the routines, and smiling was necessary to perform them with style, being able to act a little crazy was necessary to survive. Foothill's majorettes logged around 13 hours of practice a week, in addition to performing at football game half time shows, parades, and a memorable pep assembly. They did well at all the parades they competed in, usually going home with a first place trophy. While half time shows were a lot of fun and a time for that special majorette sparkle to come forth, preparing for them was a lot of work. Making up an entire field show in four days, coordinating routines with the band and flags was never easy, and sometimes the stress was hard to handle. However, being a majorette meant taking things in stride, and it wasn't surprising to see the Foothill twirlers sitting on the football field during one half time show, drinking Cokes and relaxing while the band played “Fun Fun Fun.”

“Where the #!$%*¢? is my baton?!?”

Band Stays In Tune

After a fun-filled week in New York during the summer of 1986, the Foothill Band had no trouble adjusting back to regular practices for the upcoming football and marching season. After scorching heat and humidity in New York, and having to stand at attention for long periods of time, often playing an instrument, returning band members had an easier time with practices and competitions

The band had a great year at parades and the band received a second place at the Lester Oaks Band Review, and for the first time ever, placed in the California Band Review, coming in fourth. Also during the year, the band was invited to play at Magic Mountain's Music Festival. Afterwards, band members were treated to an afternoon enjoying the rides for free.

As in past years, members once again proved that being a “bando” brought not only challenges and long hours of hard work, but also lasting memories and life-long friends

Yearbook Has A Blast

Dedication, and hard work, that was what being a yearbook staff member meant. Deadlines had to be met and things had to get done

The year started off with only a handful of returning staff members

"Late nights before deadlines is what yearbook is really all about."

The staff started its 1st deadline virtually knowing nothing and by the last one, they were experts, at least some of them.

Along with the hard work, there were a lot of fun times. There were celebration pizza parties after a deadline was met, and even one memorable pizza party waiting until late into the night for the publisher to come. Fun times of teasing people about the food they brought into the class made it possible to stick out the late nights. Creating captions that rhymed eased some of the stress of trying to do the entire senior section within two weeks.

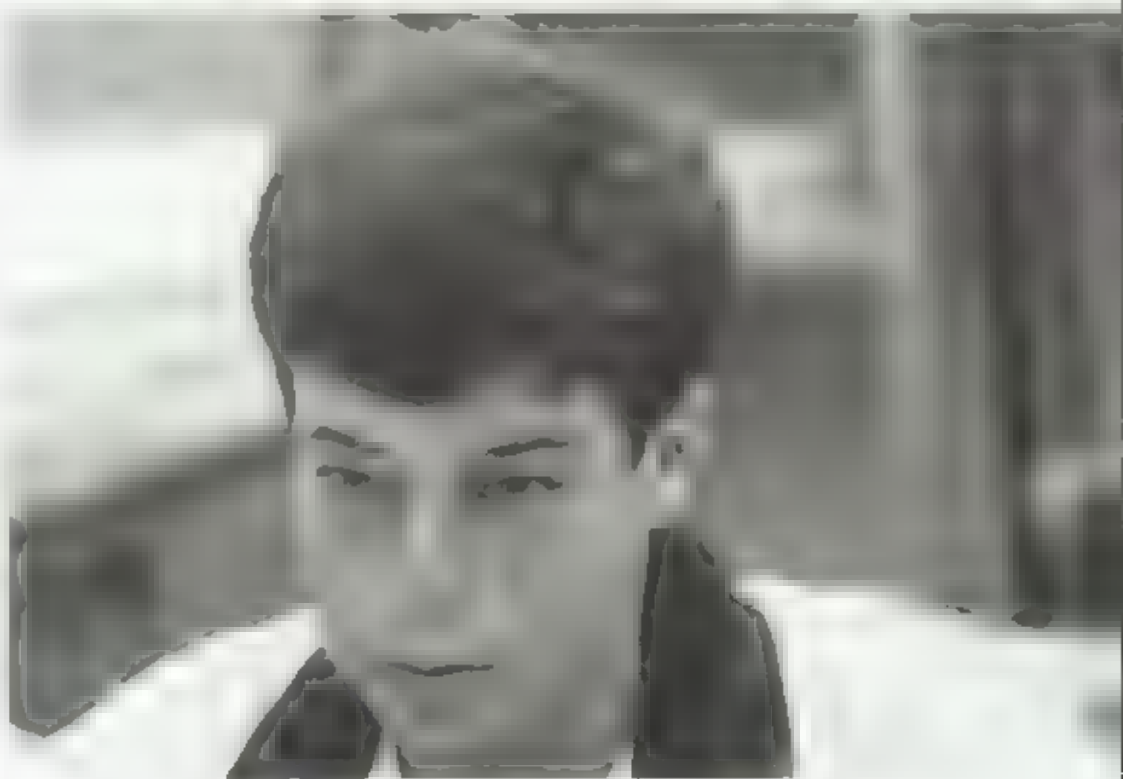

The entire staff worked together and hard (some of the time) and produced a yearbook as we see it.

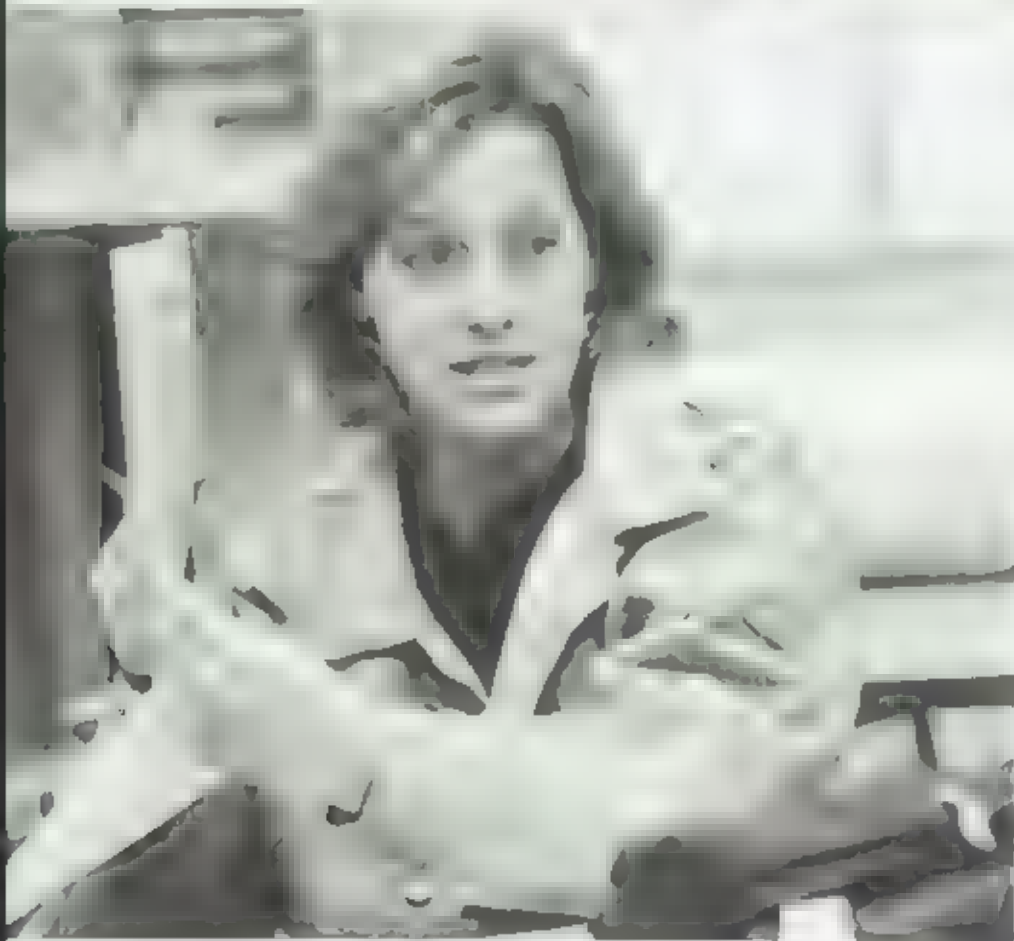

Journalism — Not Just News

In the midst of the early morning hours the journalism staff staggers into room 113 to put together the KNIGHTLIFE. Although the life of a journalist is often depicted as adventuresome, some could argue differently. Completing deadlines at the printers is not everyone's idea of a good time — for some

“This experience has been very enjoyable, I really like the people and the work — call me crazy, but I like it!!!”

with weak stomachs . . . But the staff stands the pressures from the administration, ASB, and the community in general to express the Foothill High students voice and creativity. Even with the headaches and the ulcers developed by the staff at the end of the year they had one thing to say — IT WAS WORTH IT!!!

Computer Dating

In this day and age, people rely on computers to solve many of their problems. During the "good ole days," students labored over their multiplication tables. Nowadays, a few punches on the calculator will solve almost any type of problem. Even Cupid has decided that sometimes a computer can be a helpful aid to make that "perfect match."

"The program will continue as long as Knights are looking for a date."

Since computer dating has become more popular over recent years, the computer club developed a program to match up students on campus. For a small fee, a student was able to fill out a questionnaire, which was then entered into the program. A list of ten other students (of the opposite sex, of course) who could be compatible according to the questionnaire, was then provided to that student. From there on, the student was on his own.

FHS fame does not just come from athletics. Foothill had become well known for academics. The Orange County Academic Decathlon team has put us on the map.

“OCAD has been a humorous, worthwhile, and entertaining experience.”

For several years the OCAD teams had been placing quite highly in competition. Along with winning, there was a tremendous amount of work. This challenge had to be met by the team as well as the individuals. Team work improved through the years. As for the individuals, they had been committed to the team and could be counted on for their best possible. As long as this dedication persists Foothill High will come out on top.

Talking Tool

Everybody loves to talk. If given a choice, most students would rather catch up on gossip than be taught in the classroom. One type of course offered at Foothill offers both a chance to talk and to learn. Foreign languages have been a way for teens to legitimately converse during class

"It's real neat to actually use the language I'm learning in the real world."

Foothill offered Latin, Spanish, French and German during the 1986/87 school year. Three of these languages have clubs for extra-curricular activities. (Latin, being a newly offered course, did not have one.) These clubs go to restaurants and movies dealing with their respective language. These activities provide students with culture of country as well as being exposed to the language. Club members receive a well-rounded education with which they can use in the futures

Math Contests

The Math/Science club was a very active club this past year. They participated in several, different competitions and planned their own contest. The

"The opportunities the Math/Science club provides me with are beneficial to my math."

Foothill Math Contest has only been around for two years. The contest consisted of several junior high grades coming to Foothill to compete. This gave the younger students a chance to use their math skills in a productive way

Besides setting up the contest and competing in other contests the club held monthly meetings and raised funds at various school events. This club has been a successful club because of the dedication of the officers and the participation of its members

AS WE SEE Athletics

Finishing that extra mile, making that winning basket, or crossing the goal line was one way we saw athletics. To us they were a way to express ourselves. To some, they were their entire lives.

Along with winning, Foothill students saw athletics as a challenge. The challenge was not simply to win the game or meet, but to excel, winning or losing, made no difference. We felt that as long as we had done our best, there was no losing.

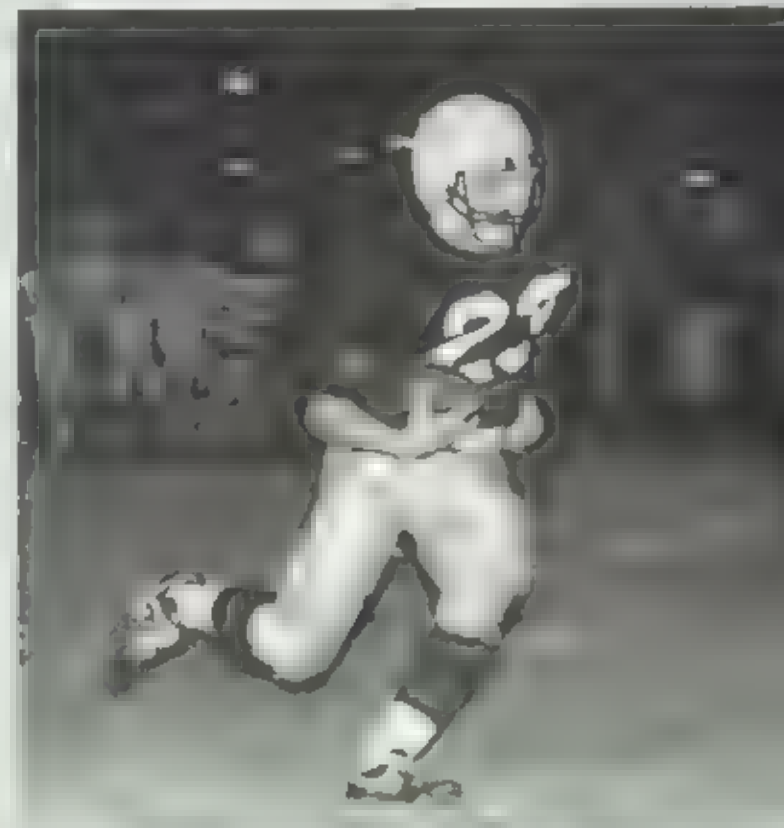

The pride that went along with sports was one factor that kept the Foothill athletes going. Varsity swimmer, Kristin Grahn stated "I continue swimming because when I improve my time I get self satisfaction and I am more motivated to stay swimming. It also gives me a lot of pride for Foothill." This pride was observed not only in the athletes but also in the student spectators. "Going to the football game Friday night and cheering on the team helped us get into the swing of high school," commented freshmen Patty Bowen and Jennifer VanTuyle.

Along with the glory of athletics there was a lot of work. Each day many hours were spent practicing to become the best. The time spent was not alone. Each person had to do their part, but like a car, it was necessary that all were present and in good shape, and working together to make it go.

The challenge of sports, along with the pride, kept Foothill athletes striving for success. The dedication, hard work, and team cooperation was what made the success. As We See It, athletics is a combination of forces, that brings us together as a team, to work towards a common goal, excellence.

Up For Grabs

With the season ending in '86, the Varsity Volleyball Team tried another devastating task. They tried to win the California Interscholastic Federation, CIF. With this in mind they went all out to try to win, but unfortunately didn't succeed. With great coaching from Sheila Adams, and a fine performance from the Varsity Volleyball Team, they had a remarkable team, with every opportunity up for grabs. The J.V. Volleyball Team also put out a great effort to try to stay on top, with Tanya Foxe, Cari Cutliff, Sandi Rasmussen and friends. Volleyball started to become popular with everyone, especially since boys have started to join into the fun of the game. '86' was a promising year, and '87' will be an even better one

Another Year of Foothill Football

The Knights got off to a rough start this year, but soon overcame their apparent weaknesses. The season began to turn around and Foothill ended up in a great playoff spot.

Meeting the El Modena Vanguards after last year's victory put the team in a difficult situation. Despite putting up a great effort, but due to a last second field goal by El Modena, Foothill lost, 10-7. Hopefully, next year will be a different story, however, and if Foothill wins, the victory will be sweet.

The first round CIF game against Los Alamitos was a contest which all the players dearly wanted to win. Head Coach Ted Mullen gave an uplifting speech to the players before the game, and it appears that it did not go entirely without effect, Foothill won 21-0, the only shutout. Mission Viejo took their turn the next week, shutting Foothill out, 14-0. This was the third year that the team had experienced this disappointing loss to Mission in the second round of CIF play.

Once again, the sophomore football team had another outstanding year, with many players having a great season. Hopefully, these outstanding players can go on and continue the tradition on the varsity team in years to come. Their outstanding performance, should prove to the advantage of the Varsity Football team. Working towards the goal of varsity, these sophomores, showed their excellent talents of the sport

Working Towards Perfection

With the help of players like John Shanahan and Ron McGehee, the freshman football team finished an outstanding year. Things are looking good for next year's sophomore team and this group will be the ones to watch in the years to come. Of course, things weren't perfect, but, with a little practice, the team could be of championship quality.

Cutting It Close!

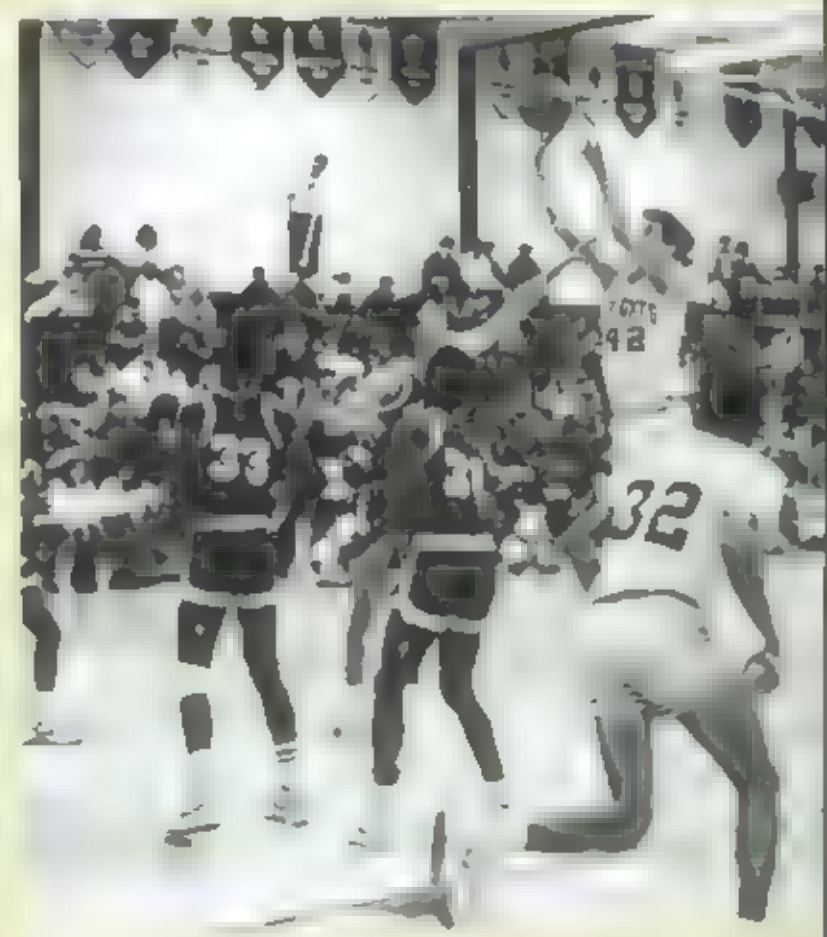

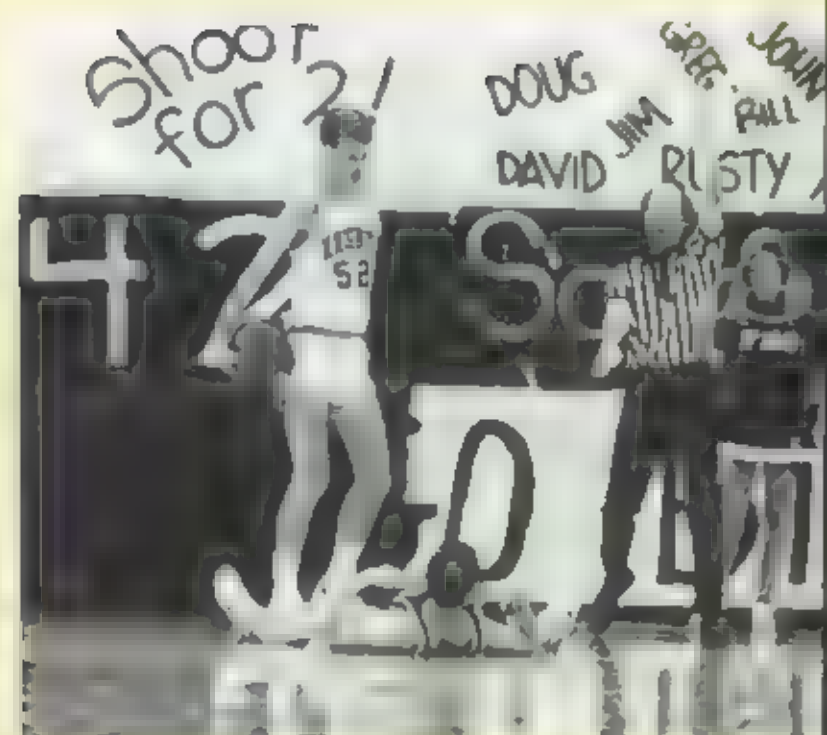

The 87 season was another great one for the boys varsity basketball team. Coach Reames, along with his team, without a doubt could take his team all the way. They had a very satisfying season, with some great victories. The players themselves performed very well with their skillful plays, thought out strategies, and fine performances from Christian Aqueveque, Bill Peckham, Coach Jim Reames, and all the other great basketball players on the team. This season was an excellent one for the school's varsity team, and the school hoped next season would have just as much talent on their team as this one did.

Girls Are At The Top

It was another fantastic season for basketball, and these five Foothill teams gave it all to be at the top. The boys J.V. basketball team was excellent, and went through the season undefeated, as did both the Sophomore and Freshmen teams. The girls J.V. basketball team was ahead ever since the season started. They, like the Frosh/Soph team, went undefeated for the season. In all, basketball had a great season at F.H.S., and hopefully it will stay that way for many years into the future

Shooting to Win

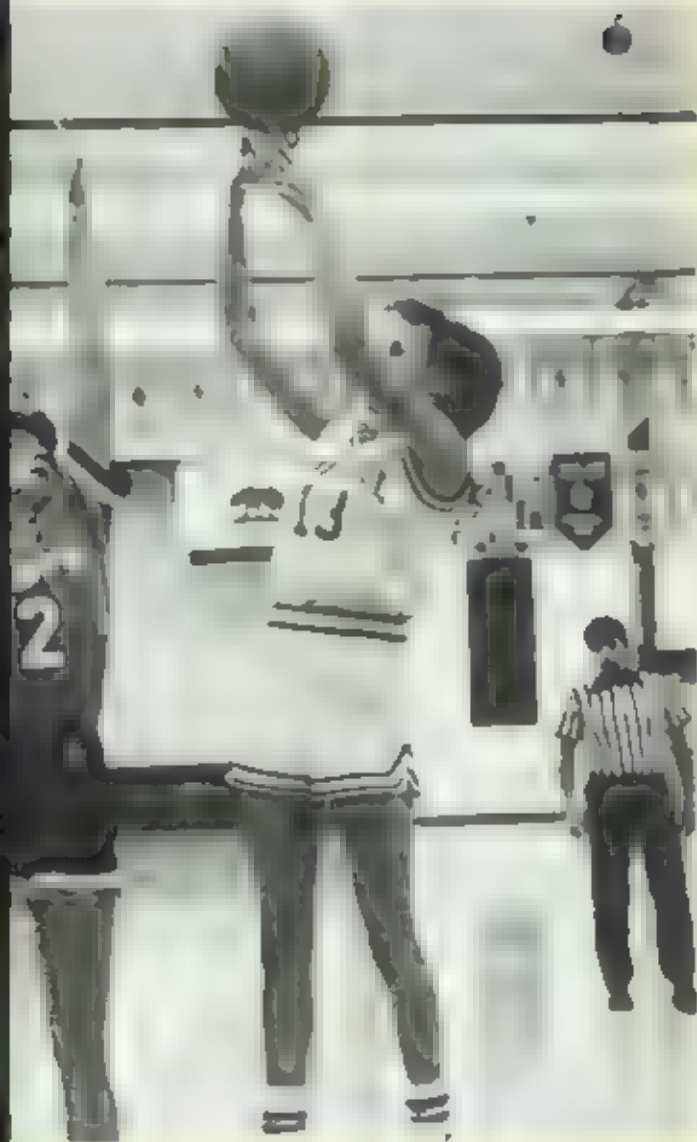

Picture the last two minutes of the girls basketball game. The score going back and forth between the two teams like a pendulum on a clock. Suddenly, leading point scorer Sue Davis swiftly jumps up and literally places the ball into the basket. This is how the entire season went. Led by top players Tiffany Chandler, Ashley Selman, Najla Mitchell, Sue Davis, and Sheila Bender, the team had an incredible record of 22 wins and only 4 losses. As to be expected, the girls reached their goal of going to CIF. Unfortunately, they ended the season early when they lost an exceptionally difficult game against Compton. Although the girls did not reach their maximum peak, winning the CIF championship, their enthusiasm, team work, and spirit prevailed and the overall season was superb.

Cross Country Has Another Great Year

The boys cross country team was a striving success this year. The JV and Frosh/Soph both ended the season with 4-1 record. The team captains Les Nesbitt and Evan Smith lead the teams to victory. Mike Thorn and Chris Whitaker were also big helps in times where the team needed that little extra push. At the Woodbridge Invitational the Seniors came in first, and at the Sonora invitational they came in third.

The girls cross country team this year wasn't quite as good. The varsity team did come in third at the Sonora Invitational, however. The JV girls ended the season 2-3, but came in first at Yuicapa. Both boys and girls teams tried hard and things are already looking good for next year.

A Look Into The Future

Although nothing spectacular happened in the 1986-1987 wrestling season, the team did place fourth overall in League finals with Jeff King and John Slattery placing second, Craig Davis and Brian DeCoite placing third, and Dan Healy and Mike Tuchman placing fourth. The top varsity members were Allan Baker, Craig Davis, Mike Tuchman, and Brian DeCoite. Some of the junior varsity members improved a lot. Some of those who improved were Jerrett Bell and Chris Leitner.

Hard Work Pays Off

On Foothill's varsity team there was no one star player. The team relied on teamwork, not just on one player. They worked out twice a day, totaling three and a half hours. The work paid off, because the team came in second in league and beat Newport Harbor for the first time in 12 years. Simcox felt that there was a possibility that some team members would play in the NCAA in college. He had several seniors with a lot of talent. Coach Simcox said "as far as teamwork they were the best team that I have ever coached. I have had other teams with more talent, but none with the desire and intelligence of this team."

Young & Strong

The ideal water polo player is someone who has great talent, and can do what the coach asks. 1986 was the first year playing water polo for most of the freshmen, but this year's frosh/soph team was strong. 1987 will be a year of young players, and therefore a year of building, and hopefully they will continue in the great tradition of Foothill. The team's strong will to win, made them do so well during the year. They worked hard together and showed what they were made of. These talents will be very useful as the team members go on to Varsity in 87 and 88.

Higher Goal!

The year for Boys soccer was to say the least extremely exciting. This year the Boys Varsity soccer team put out an all out effort. The effort was high but the difficulty of this year's schedule was too much to overcome by this year's high effort output soccer team. Even though the team recorded only two wins, one tie, and six losses, most games that were lost were usually lost only by one or two goals. Over all, the season was outstanding and the boys soccer team proved to be an exceptional combination of talents.

Soccer Scores

The JV, Sophomore and Freshmen soccer teams had a great season this year. With the help of some outstanding players, the teams went on to do a great job against the competition. Hopefully next year's teams can do as well and if these players go on to varsity play, soccer should have some league championship teams in the next few years.

Girls Head Towards CIF

The 1986-87 year for Girls Varsity Soccer was quite successful. The season ended with a total of five wins, three losses, and one tie for the Girls Varsity Soccer team. With this record Girls Varsity Soccer went to the CIF playoffs and made it to the quarterfinals before being defeated. All in all, the season for the Girls Varsity Soccer team was very good, and the future for Girls Varsity Soccer should be as bright. Girls Varsity Soccer is a winning tradition.

Golf Hits The Greens

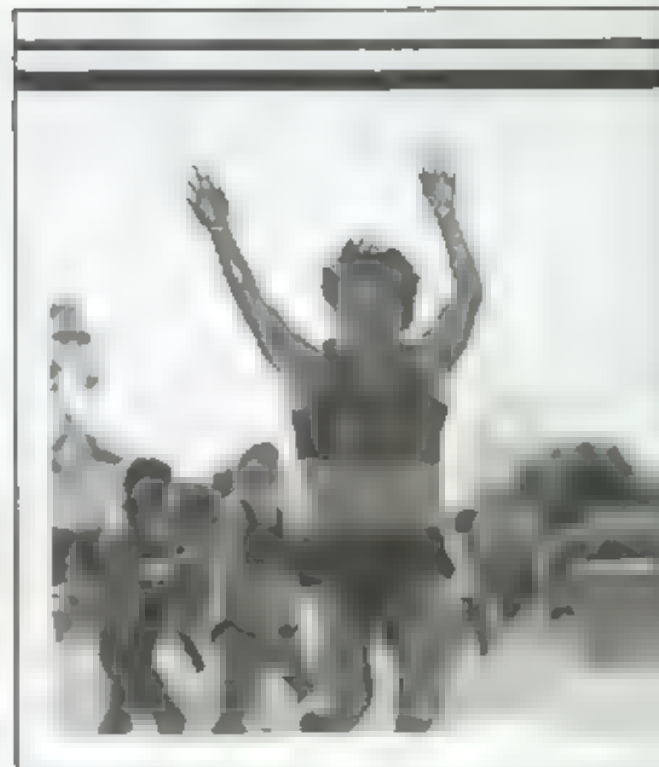

The 1987 golf team, led by Coach Osborne, had a very successful season. The team was composed of good long-ball hitters and showed their steady hands on the greens. Golf takes a lot of concentration and talent and Foothill's golfers definitely demonstrated these skills. This year was a good one and all were hoping that next year would be even better.

Girls Run To The Top

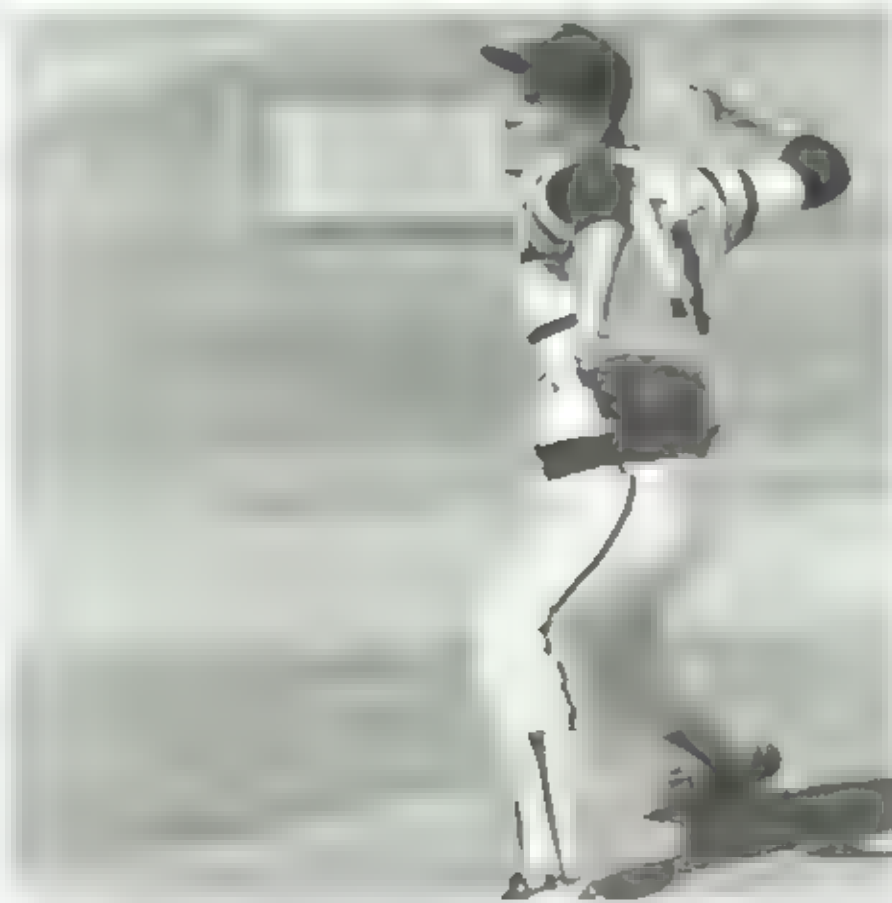

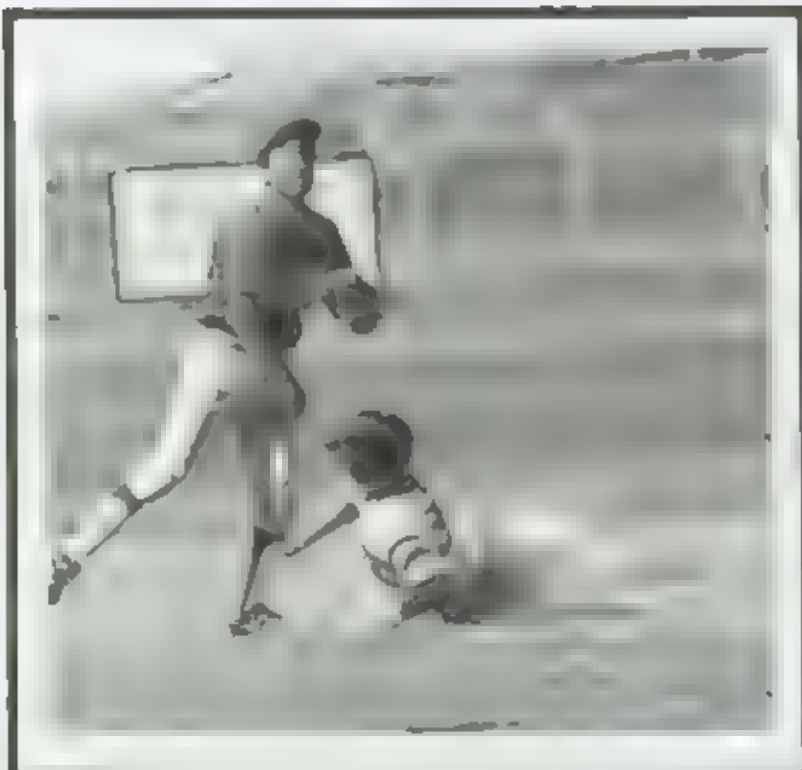

This year's track season was filled with a myriad of abysses and triumphs. The team lived up to all its expectations and really showed the quality of the coaching staff. Foothill track reached a new plateau in its quest for a true place in the Foothill High School sports hall of fame. As in previous years the team went to all the major and minor events and performed exactly as expected. The team members put out a great amount of effort and enthusiasm was high throughout the season. Everybody came to the meets with high hopes and in expectation of a big win. This year, as in previous years, the team really made the competition stand at attention and take notice.

Swinging To Victory

The 1987 Varsity Baseball team had an excellent season in which the team played their best. Coach Sedoo, and assistant coaches K. Briggs, J. George, and B. Adams really brought out a good team. Mentally and physically this team was unstoppable, although getting many bad calls deciding some of the games, they were still the best. Lead by many top players, 1987's Varsity team was one of the best hitting, pitching, and fielding teams to come around in a while.

Striking It Big

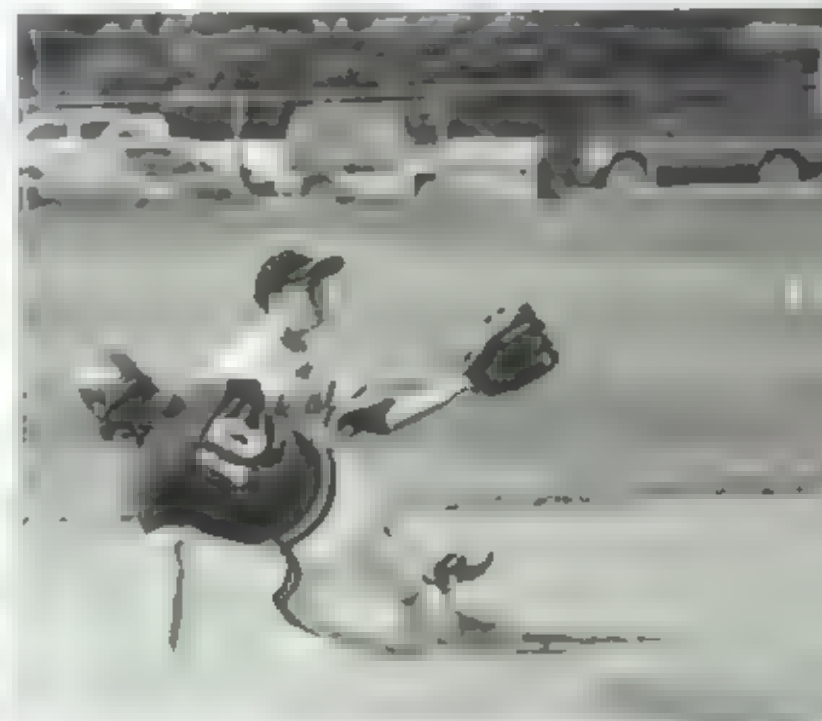

The J.V. and Frosh/Soph Baseball season for Foothill was one of the best it has ever had. J.V. had an impressive season with their offense and defensive plays. Coach Foxe and his crew was on top throughout the entire season. Frosh/Soph also had a great year, and one of their best. Coach Valenta and his team was so good that they beat a team 17 to 1, and the other team gave up and left the game when it wasn't over. Next year should be something to look forward to. They Love It

Love, that was what tennis was all about. No, not the kind of love one has with a boyfriend or a girlfriend, or even the kind between a mother and child, this was a point scoring system. Although not everyone would understand this terminology, the boys tennis team knew it inside and out. Not only did they learn the scoring system, they also used it to rake in many points through the season. They worked hard and thus did great. Overall, the boys tennis team used their strength and talents to make them do so well and thus they loved the sport

J.V. Teams

As the gun shoots and the water splashes, the J.V. Swim Teams start off a great season. Most of the J.V. swimmers were swimming for their first or second year. Even though they were young, they still worked just as hard as the Varsity teams. They like Varsity arrived at school at six am in order to swim in a cold pool. They also swam after school everyday. The young swimmers worked hard as a team, and also equally hard to improve their own times. Their hard work and dedication will most likely pay off when in future years they get the chance to swim on the Varsity team.

Varsity Boys Dive In

The water made an incredible splash as the boys varsity swim team dove into another stupendous season. The hard work and dedication the boys put into their sport really paid off, they did great. But this greatness did not just come from nothing, there was a lot of time and energy behind it. Not many people would get at 5:00 am in order to get to school by 6:00 am to emerge themselves in a 40 degree pool and begin a strenuous work out. Although morning practices were numerous, they were not the only ones, there was after school everyday for the entire length of the season. The hard work paid off and the team was fabulous.

A Special Type of Family

The 1987 Varsity Girls Swimming season was very strong. In the beginning of the season the team was expected to win Century League. Swimmers who qualified for CIF were Adrienne Scheussler, Veronica Vasquez, and Siouxanan Marcoux. Although there was not much competition for many of the meets, the swimmers worked to achieve personal bests.

Senior Jule Brouk said, "I enjoy being in the water. I enjoy trying to see how far I can push my body, to see if I can reach my limit to achieve my goal."

The workouts were very tough. They were one hour in the morning and two and one half hours in the afternoon. Swimmers spent a lot of their time together. Junior Ellie Boddy said, "I feel a close relationship with many of the swimmers because of the amount of time we spend together I consider us a special type of family."

Although the workouts are very tough and swimmers often hit a plateau, there are many rewards which make the hardship worth it. For instance, the satisfaction of improving times, reaching personal bests, keeping in shape, becoming close friends with other swimmers, and mostly feeling good about yourself

On The Right Track

Jumping over high bars, running many times around the track or throwing heavy balls was what the boys track team did. But this was not as easy as it sounds. Each of the boys needs to be in top shape in order for the team to prevail. They have to work together as a team and also as individuals. The 1987 did just that, and had a superb season. They were definitely on the right track.

SOFTBALL BONANZA!

Softball really got into the swing of things this year. This year's Softball team really blasted the competition right out of the ballpark. With a team filled with offensive powerhouse players does not mean that the defense was lacking power at all. The defense plummeted the other teams attempts at rebounding from the offensive punch. Softball was played this year as if the girls were out for blood. This year's Softball powerhouse team did not only destroy the competition, but sent the other teams home humiliated to their respective schools.

AS WE SEE Closing

The closing of the year was a time to look back on it and remember the good times and the bad times. Some saw it as a stepping stone in life. Something that would give us a boost up the ladder of life. Others saw it as a time to have fun and relax. The numerous dances that were attended were to let some of the pressures of everyday life ease off a bit. The sporting events we participated in and observed were part of the fun of high school. But other people saw high as a time to learn. We learned from not only the obvious teachers, but we also learned valuable lessons from our friends and even from our enemies.

A time to grow up was how some saw high school. We were given more responsibility and trust. Receiving a drivers license was a definite sign of maturing. We were no longer treated like children like when we were in elementary and junior high school.

Others saw high school as a time to begin to make choices. Although we were all faced with decisions some were more important. The choice of where to go to college and what to do after graduation was put on our shoulders. Other decisions were much less important, but we still had to make them, such as where to go to lunch and what to do Saturday night.

As We See It the closing of high school was a time to look back at the past four years. Although we saw it as many different things, we all saw it as a time to be young and free.

Un-soo Sung, Living on Razors Edge

AS WE SEE CURRENT EVENTS

World events affected the students of Foothill in many ways. The nationwide scare of the Aids brought new fears into the eyes of many. Students were advised and taught about the effects of the deadly disease. The memorable death of "Too Close For Comfort's" Ted Knight brought shock to the minds of many. The 200th birthday of our Statue of Liberty hit especially close to home for the Band and Tall Flags. They had the opportunity to attend the memorable lighting of the torch on July 4th. The festivities wre of astronomical size.

Other memorable events were the Marriage of Prince Andrew to Sara Ferguson and the marriage of Caroline Kennedy to Edwin Schlossberg. Each of the weddings astounded the public with their spectacular ceremonies.

On the more depressing side, The United States faced a tragedy of disbelief of their president. The Iran Arms deal led many people to suspect the president of wrong doings. It also started a controversy that would be a long time before being settled.

But with the good, came the bad as the United States achieved the long awaited non-stop flight around the world.

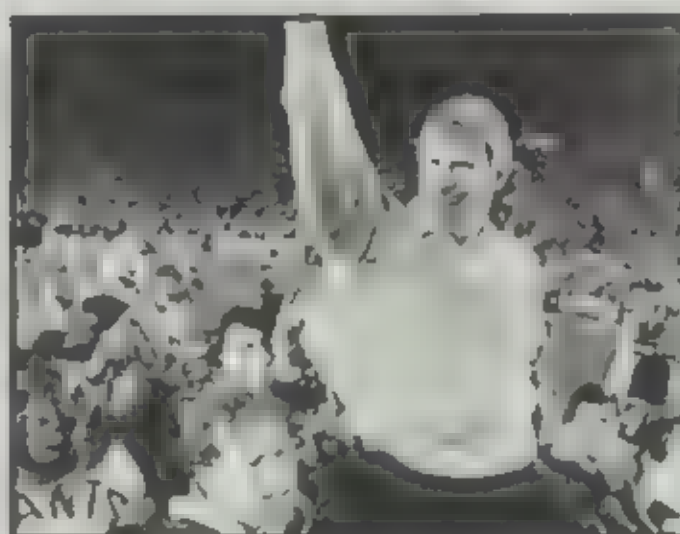

But what did these and many more events mean to the students? As we see it, current events were the triumphs and tribulations that were soon to be ours.

Right: President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev met in Reykjavik, Iceland, for a two-day summit in October to discuss arms control.

Above: Prince Andrew married Sarah Ferguson in July at Westminster Abbey in a spectacle that mustered the pomp and glory of Britain's 920-year old monarchy.

Above: It was called "crack" and "rock", but whatever the name this form of cocaine may be the most addictive narcotic ever sold on the streets of America

AS We See Conclusion

The time, 2:48 pm. The date June 18, 1987. The last bell has just sounded and school is out. For some it is only out of session for the summer, but for the senior class high school is over. As the students rush to their lockers for the last time, many thoughts of the past and future run through their heads. Memories of the good times with friends at the football games and at the dances, race through their minds. At the same time hopes and fears of what is to come enter their minds.

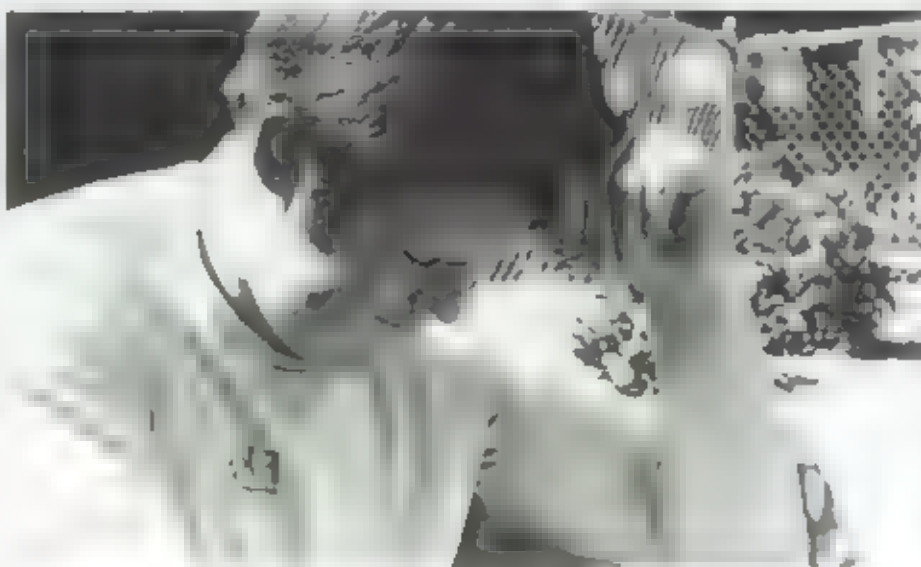

The ending of school marks the beginning and the end. It is for the seniors the beginning of a life on their own. In just a few short months many will be leaving home to attend schools all over the globe. Others will join the armed forces and travel to distant places. And still others will take on the responsibility of a full time job.

For the juniors this day marks the end of their easy days. They must now begin to think about college, and they also are now the top of the school.

The sophomores become upper classmen and with that the responsibility to set an example for the lower classmen. And the freshmen now come to the realization that they have survived their first year of high school.

This day also marks an end, especially for the seniors. They are no longer considered children and must face the responsibility of adulthood. As We See It, the conclusion of the year marks the beginning of a new life, and the end of an old one.

Eva -
 It's a shame we didn't have a class together this year. But we are still friends! And let's remain friends next year, even though we won't be at football (at least you won't.) Have a great summer, etc.
